

- U.S. home prices gained 0.2% in August, according to the Case-Shiller 20-city home price index, with 10 of the index's 20 housing markets showing increases. The small increase helped narrow the year-over-year average price decline to 3.8%. With five straight months of price increases, some analysts saw signs of the housing market finally stabilizing